How to convert multi-page to single-page PDF using Adobe Acrobat? Adobe Acrobat doesn't add pages automatically or generate a new document with merged pages. However, you can merge pages using the built-in functions. Here are the methods to convert multi-page to single-page PDF using Adobe Acrobat. Merge Pages: Step-by-Step Guide Suppose you have to create a single-page PDF file of the out-of-print, multi-page magazine that you collected from a library. You can automate this process using the built-in merge page functions. 1. Create a new file (in Adobe Acrobat) using the Transpose tool. Open the new file's properties. 2. Change the Page Layout to Content. 3. Click the Merge Pages button. The tool will merge all the pages with a common margin or section. 4. Click the OK button and save. 5. You can also remove the new pages using the Edit menu. If you are working with a lot of files, you can use batch processing. Open a new Acrobat document. Select all the target documents that you want to convert to single pages. File > Merge Document... Choose "Merge pages from selected document". The tool will automatically create a new document for every selected document. File > Save Optionally, you can also choose whether to include any non-printable pages that don't need PDF files.
